

TIGERS READY FOR CURTAIN TO RISE

Rest, Quiet Sleep, and a Little Exercise on the Evans Farm

"WIN" IS ONLY THOUGHT

Players Will Stay in the Country Until Time for the Game

Rest, plenty of fresh air, plenty to eat and just enough exercise to keep them in fighting trim was the program of the band of twenty-three Tigers at the big Evans farmhouse five miles out on the Ashland Gravel road yesterday and today. The weeks of hard practice for Missouri's football men ended last Wednesday.

Of course there is practice each day at the farm, but it is little more than exercise and keeping up a smooth working acquaintance with the signals. Even in the cold and snow of yesterday afternoon the entire band was out in their suits. The work consisted only of signal drill and the limbering up of muscles by kicking punts, falling on the ball and other stunts of an athletic nature.

The simple life is what the Tigers, the old M men, the coaches and trainers are enjoying on the Evans farm. In the old-fashioned Missouri farm home, too, they have an ideal place to enjoy their respite before the big struggle of tomorrow. There in the big rooms with the ample fire places they gather during the day, always talking—football. There is no sign of worry, but watch them carefully when they are discussing the various points of practice and you notice that which the rooters want to see—determination.

When the players come onto Rollins Field Saturday afternoon there will be none who has not made up his mind that Missouri is equal or rather better than the Kansans at the game of football this season, and who is not going into the contest with the determination and belief that the team is going to whip the Jayhawkers. As a whole it's a goodnatured happy party but everywhere there is that air of seriousness. Especially is this seriousness noted when once they are in their suits and ready for work-out on the pig lot or for a cross-country run.

Each day anything that would tend to interfere with rest is excluded from the camp. There are no newspapers, only magazines. An early breakfast starts the day. Later comes a few miles across the corn and wheat fields; then luncheon. Sleep or whatever rest the men themselves want precedes a call for football suits and the men are out for two hours of fresh air and limbering up. And at night there have been to late hours—except for the old M men.

The team will come to Columbia in motor cars tomorrow just after eating their luncheon on the farm. There was signal practice this afternoon. Tomorrow there will be a long walk in the morning, but the men will not put on their suits until ready to start for the field.

WARMER AND FAIR TOMORROW

Weather Forecast Predicts Good Day For Kansas Game.

The forecast of the United States Weather Bureau here until 7 o'clock tomorrow night is:

For Columbia—Fair tonight and not so cold; lowest temperature about 22. Tomorrow fair and warmer in the afternoon. At Columbia the highest temperature yesterday was 26, the lowest was 14 last night. The same date last year the highest was 58, the lowest, 38.

For Missouri—Generally fair tonight and tomorrow, warmer tonight, and east portion tomorrow.

Shippers Forecast—Protect 36-hour shipments north against temperature of 16 degrees; east, 20; south, 24; west, 22 degrees. The temperatures today were:

7 a. m. 14	11 a. m. 22
8 a. m. 14	12 noon 25
9 a. m. 15	1 p. m. 28
10 a. m. 18	2 p. m. 31

C. L. Brewer, is a surprise for the donors of the gate. It reads:

This gate was erected by George Bingham Rollins Curtis Burnham Rollins Edward Tutt Rollins

To encourage athletic sports Among the youth of Missouri

"There is no greater glory For a man in all his life Than what he wins With his hands and feet"

C. L. Brewer says the quotation, which is from Homer, shows the antiquity and permanency of football.

The gate is ready for the crowds tomorrow. The right hand entrance leads to the south bleachers, the central one to the boxes, and the one on the left to the north bleachers.

Rollins Field is blanketed with hay. Before the snow yesterday afternoon, O. F. Field had 160 bales of hay scattered over the gridiron and he said today that the hay will be removed by 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when the field is marked.

The gridiron was rolled yesterday afternoon. As it is frozen the ground will be dry and hard when the game starts. Only a heavy rain after it is uncovered can put the field in bad shape.

TIGERS RECEIVE LUCKY COINS

A Lincoln Penny. Supposed to Bring Success, Is Given to Each Player.

Will the Tigers have good luck once during the season? If Lincoln pennies bring the good luck they are boasted to possess, the luck will all be with the Tigers against Kansas. Last night twenty-five of these pennies were given to the twenty-three men of the squad and the two

TRUE SPORTSMANSHIP.

Columbians, students, you are to be hosts tomorrow as never before. No other strictly Missouri town has ever been called upon to treat invading Kansans as guests.

To be sure, Kansas is still our football enemy. But the mode of warfare has changed. This time the invasion is invited. It is to be truly sportsmanlike. The old contest has lost none of its ferocity, but it has assumed an aspect of courtesy.

We must not forget for a moment, either in the flush of victory or the sting of defeat, that Kansas is our guest. We should show the Kansas invaders that they are fighting upon grounds where they can be sure of a square deal and every consideration of fairness.

True sportsmanship is in playing hard, but treating opponents courteously.

coaches. They were given by Dr. R. M. Burgess, a Columbia dentist, at supper Wednesday night before the team left for the farm of George Evans.

These particular pennies are those with the initials of one man upon them. The government has been calling these back and Dr. Burgess had to have the pennies ordered. "But they will sure make the Tigers lucky in that Kansas game," he said.

DELINQUENT CHILD FROM RUINED HOME

Judge J. Hugo Grimm Says Divorce Causes Much "Kid" Crime

TELLS OF ST. LOUIS WORK

Work of Juvenile Correction Much Less, If Homes More Stable

The lawyer's education should include academic studies, at least courses in biology, psychology, sociology and logic, according to Judge J. H. Grimm, formerly juvenile, but now a circuit judge of St. Louis, in his lecture to Dr. C. A. Ellwood's class in Sociology this morning.

A juvenile judge, according to Judge Grimm, has practically unlimited power and responsibility. To discharge his duty properly he is compelled to examine into the child's physical and mental condition, his environment and his character.

"In treating the youthful offender the court acts upon entirely different principles than does the criminal court," said Mr. Grimm. "The question it seeks to answer is not, 'Did the child commit the act,' but rather 'What were the causes or influences that made him do it,' and the question which then follows is not how will we punish the child, but rather how will we protect him. The judge, if he is thorough and conscientious, will consider whether the cause may not be removed, and here the court, at least in the great cities, calls to its aid all the constructive agencies of society.

"Violating a city ordinance, fighting, disturbing the peace, or violating the conditions of a parole are not serious," said Mr. Grimm in speaking further of the juvenile court. "I rather look for a healthy boy to fight occasionally." "I even look for dignified professors and at least one circuit judge to disturb the peace of our city on the morrow."

Statistics of the court in St. Louis show that 80 per cent of the delinquent children are from broken homes.

It is the opinion of Mr. Wilby that a national highway will be established before long. The road probably would be from New York to Washington, across the central states to the Santa Fe Trail and along it into New Mexico, terminating at Los Angeles.

ROUND THE TABLE MARCH K. C. ALUMNI

The Old Grads Sing "A Son of old Mizzou" At Annual Dinner

DR. HILL GUEST OF HONOR

A String Quartet From the U. of M. Gives Recitals at Kansas City High Schools.

Telegrams facetious and otherwise deluged the guests at the annual dinner of the Kansas City alumni of the University of Missouri Wednesday night. The dinner was held at the University Club in Kansas City. A telegram received by A. Ross Hill, president of the University, from A. Rooter in Columbia said that in practice Wednesday afternoon Captain Shuck had lost a part of his curriculum and asked if he might go into the game in his crippled condition.

Messages were received from alumni throughout the country. One from the "Assassinated Press" correspondent in Washington stated that Justices of the Peace Setzler and Simrall had annulled the recent supreme court ruling in the Standard Oil case. President Taft had in vain tried to make light of the decision. The President said that the only S. and S. combination of which he had knowledge was a packing house firm, so that he supposed the annulment was made under packing house rules. The decision so preyed on Rockefeller's mind that he broke an engagement to play golf.

President A. Ross Hill.

To the tune of "A Son of Old Mizzou" the alumni marched into the dining room. By force of habit they fell into a lockstep line and marched round and round the table while they sang the Varsity songs and gave the old-time college yells.

Dr. A. Ross Hill, who was the guest of honor, spoke of the rapid growth of the University and advocated the passage of the mill tax amendment as a necessary step to the future greatness of the school. He advised the purchase of a block of ground as an addition to the campus. This block would connect the present campus and the science quadrangle of the future which is to be established on the horticultural grounds. The building most needed at the present time is a University library, President Hill said.

Yesterday was University Day in Kansas City. A string quartet from the University of Missouri visited the Central, Manual and Westport high schools in the morning and gave recitals. They were accompanied by alumni. Last night a reception was given at the Central High School.
